

Later Poems

Later Poems

By Alice Meynell

Author of "Poems"

London and New York
John Lane, The Bodley Head.
1902

1961

Copyright, 1901
BY JOHN LANE
All rights reserved

Accession No G 3597/RP/04
DATE L. 1901
S. A. P. 1901
dated 16.1.86

UNIVERSITY PRESS · JOHN WILSON
AND SON · CAMBRIDGE, U. S. A.

TO
A. T.

Contents

| | Page |
|------------------------------------|------|
| The Shepherdess | 9 |
| "I am the Way" | 11 |
| Via, et Veritas, et Vita | 12 |
| Why wilt Thou Chide? | 13 |
| The Lady Poverty | 15 |
| The Fold | 17 |
| Cradle-song at Twilight | 18 |
| The Roaring Frost | 19 |
| Parentage | 20 |
| The Modern Mother | 22 |
| West Wind in Winter | 24 |
| November Blue | 26 |
| Chimes | 28 |
| Unto us a Son is given | 29 |
| A Dead Harvest | 31 |

Contents

| | Page |
|--------------------------------|------|
| The Two Poets | 33 |
| A Poet's Wife | 35 |
| Veneration of Images | 36 |
| At Night | 37 |

THE SHEPHERDESS

SHE walks — the lady of my delight —

A shepherdess of sheep.

Her flocks are thoughts. She keeps them
white;

She guards them from the steep.

She feeds them on the fragrant height,

And folds them in for sleep.

She roams maternal hills and bright,

Dark valleys safe and deep.

Into that tender breast at night

The chastest stars may peep.

She walks — the lady of my delight —

A shepherdess of sheep.

Later Poems

She holds her little thoughts in sight,

Though gay they run and leap.

She is so circumspect and right;

She has her soul to keep.

She walks — the lady of my delight —

A shepherdess of sheep.

“ I Am the Way ”

“ I AM THE WAY ”

THOU art the Way.
Hadst Thou been nothing but the goal,
I cannot say
If Thou hadst ever met my soul.

I cannot see —
I, child of process — if there lies
An end for me,
Full of repose, full of replies.

I'll not reproach
The way that goes, my feet that stir.
Access, approach,
Art Thou, time, way, and wayfarer.

Later Poems

VIA, ET VERITAS, ET VITA

“YOU never attained to Him?” “If to attain
Be to abide, then that may be.”

“Endless the way, followed with how much pain!”

“The way was He.”

“Why Wilt Thou Chide?”

“WHY WILT THOU CHIDE?”

Why wilt thou chide,
Who hast attained to be denied?
Oh learn, above
All price is my refusal, Love.
My sacred Nay
Was never cheapened by the way.
Thy single sorrow crowns thee lord
Of an unpurchasable word.

Oh strong, Oh pure!
As Yea makes happier loves secure,
I vow thee this
Unique rejection of a kiss.

Later Poems

I guard for thee
This jealous sad monopoly.
I seal this honour thine. None dare
Hope for a part in thy despair.

• The Lady Poverty

THE LADY POVERTY

THE Lady Poverty was fair :
But she has lost her looks of late,
With change of times and change of air.
Ah slattern, she neglects her hair,
Her gown, her shoes. She keeps no state
As once when her pure feet were bare.

Or — almost worse, if worse can be —
She scolds in parlours; dusts and trims,
Watches and counts. Oh, is this she
Whom Francis met, whose step was free,
Who with Obedience carolled hymns,
In Umbria walked with Chastity ?

Later Poems

Where is her ladyhood ? Not here,
Not among modern kinds of men ;
But in the stony fields, where clear
Through the thin trees the skies appear
In delicate spare soil and fen,
And slender landscape and austere.

The Fold

THE FOLD

BEHOLD,

The time is now! Bring back, bring back
Thy flocks of fancies, wild of whim.

Oh lead them from the mountain-track —

Thy frolic thoughts untold.

Oh bring' them in — the fields grow dim —

And let me be the fold.

Behold,

The time is now! Call in, O call

Thy pasturing kisses gone astray

For scattered sweets. Gather them all

To shelter from the cold.

Throng them together, close and gay,

And let me be the fold!

Later Poems

CRADLE-SONG AT TWILIGHT

THE child not yet is lulled to rest.

Too young a nurse, the slender Night
So laxly holds him to her breast
That throbs with flight.

He plays with her and will not sleep.

For other playfellows she sighs ;
An unmaternal fondness keep
Her alien eyes.

The Roaring Frost

THE ROARING FROST

A FLOCK of winds came winging from the North,

Strong birds with fighting pinions driving forth

With a resounding call !

Where will they close their wings and cease their cries —

Between what warming seas and conquering skies —

And fold, and fall ?

Later Poems

PARENTAGE

“When Augustus Cæsar legislated against the unmarried citizens of Rome, he declared them to be, in some sort, slayers of the people.”

•

AH no, not these !

These, who were childless, are not they who gave

So many dead unto the journeying wave,
The helpless nurslings of the cradling seas ;
Not they who doomed by infallible decrees
Unnumbered man to the innumerable grave.

Parentage

But those who slay
Are fathers. Theirs are armies. Death is theirs,
The death of innocences and despairs ;
The dying of the golden and the grey.
The sentence, when these speak it, has no Nay.
And she who slays is she who bears, who bears.

Later Poems

THE MODERN MOTHER

OH what a kiss
With filial passion overcharged is this !
To this misgiving breast
The child runs, as a child ne'er ran to rest
Upon the light heart and the unoppressed.

Unhoped, unsought !
A little tenderness, this mother thought
The utmost of her need
She looked for gratitude ; content indeed
With thus much that her nine years' love had bought.

The Modern Mother

Nay, even with less.

This mother, giver of life, death, peace, distress,

Desired ah ! not so much

Thanks as forgiveness ; and the passing touch

Expected, and the slight, the brief caress.

Oh filial light

Strong in these childish eyes, these new, these bright

Intelligible stars ! Their rays

Are near the constant earth, guides in the maze,

Natural, true, keen in this dusk of days.

Later Poems

WEST WIND IN WINTER

ANOTHER day awakes. And who —
Changing the world — is this?
He comes at whiles, the Winter through,
West Wind! I would not miss
His sudden tryst: the long, the new
Surprises of his kiss.

Vigilant, I make haste to close
With him who comes my way.
I go to meet him as he goes;
I know his note, his lay,
His colour and his morning rose;
And I confess his day.

West Wind in Winter

My window waits; at dawn I hark
His call; at morn I meet
His haste around the tossing park
And down the softened street;
The gentler light is his; the dark,
The grey — he turns it sweet.

So too, so too, do I confess
My poet when he sings.
He rushes on my mortal guess
With his immortal things.
I feel, I know him. On I press —
He finds me 'twixt his wings.

Later Poems

NOVEMBER BLUE

The colour of the electric lights has a strange effect in giving a complementary tint to the air in the early evening. — ESSAY ON LONDON.

O, HEAVENLY colour! London town
Has blurred it from her skies;
And hooded in an earthly brown,
Unheaven'd the city lies.
No longer standard-like this hue
Above the broad road flies;
Nor does the narrow street the blue
• Wear, slender pennon-wise.

November Blue

But when the gold and silver lamps
 Colour the London dew,
And, misted by the winter damps,
 The shops shine bright anew —
Blue comes to earth, it walks the street,
 It dyes the wide air through;
A mimic sky about their feet,
 The throng go crowned with blue.

Later Poems

CHIMES

BRIEF, on a flying night,
From the shaken tower,
A flock of bells take flight,
And go with the hour.

Like birds from the cote to the gales,
•Abrupt — O hark!
A fleet of bells set sails,
And go to the dark.

Sudden the cold airs swing.
Alone, aloud,
A verse of bells takes wing
And flies with the cloud.

Unto Us a Son is Given

UNTO US A SON IS GIVEN

GIVEN, not lent,
And not withdrawn — once sent —
This Infant of mankind, this One,
Is still the little welcome Son.

New every year,
New-born and newly dear,
He comes with tidings and a song,
The ages long, the ages long.

Even as the cold
Keen winter grows not old;
As childhood is so fresh, foreseen,
And spring in the familiar green;

Later Poems

Sudden as sweet

Come the expected feet.

All joy is young, and new all art,

And He, too, Whom we have by heart.

A Dead Harvest

A DEAD HARVEST

[IN KENSINGTON GARDENS]

ALONG the graceless grass of town
They rake the rows of red and brown,
Dead leaves, unlike the rows of hay,
Delicate, neither gold nor grey,
Raked long ago and far away.

A narrow silence in the park ;
Between the lights a narrow dark.
One street rolls on the north, and one,
Muffled, upon the south doth run.
Amid the mist the work is done.

Later Poems

A futile crop; for it the fire
Smoulders, and, for a stack, a pyre.
So go the town's lives on the breeze,
Even as the sheddings of the trees;
Bosom nor barn is filled with these.

The Two Poets

THE TWO POETS

WHOSE is the speech
That moves the voices of this lonely beech?
Out of the long West did this wild wind come —
Oh strong and silent! And the tree was dumb,
 Ready and dumb, until
The dumb gale struck it on the darkened hill.

Two memories,
Two powers, two promises, two silences
Closed in this cry, closed in these thousand leaves

Later Poems

Articulate. This sudden hour retrieves
The purpose of the past,
Separate, apart — embraced, embraced at last.

“ Whose is the word?
Is it I that spake? Is it thou? Is it I that heard? ”
“ Thine earth was solitary ; yet I found thee ! ”
“ Thy sky was pathless, but I caught, I bound thee,
• Thou visitant divine.”
“ O thou my Voice, the word was thine.”
“ Was thine.”

A Poet's Wife

A POET'S WIFE

I SAW a tract of ocean locked in-land
Within a field's embrace —
The very sea! Afar it fled the strand
And gave the seasons chase,
And met the night alone, the tempest spanned,
Saw sunrise face to face.

O Poet, more than ocean, lonelier!
In inaccessible rest
And storm remote, thou, sea of thoughts, dost stir,
Scattered through east to west, —
Now, while thou closest with the kiss of her
Who locks thee to her breast.

Later Poems

VENERATION OF IMAGES

THOU man, first-comer, whose wide arms
entreat,

Gather, clasp, welcome, bind,
Lack, or remember ! whose warm pulses beat
With love of thine own kind ;

Unlifted for a blessing on yon sea,
Unshrined on this high-way,
O flesh, O grief, thou too shalt have our knee,
Thou rood of every day !

At Night

AT NIGHT

HOME, home from the horizon far and clear,
Hither the soft wings sweep ;
Flocks of the memories of the day draw near
The dovecote doors of sleep.

O which are they that come through sweetest light
Of all these homing birds?
Which with the straightest and the swiftest flight?
Your words to me, your words !

BY THE SAME AUTHOR

POEMS

Fcap. 8vo.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

She sings with a very human sincerity, a singular religious intensity, — rare, illusive, curiously perfumed verse, so simple always, yet so subtle in its simplicity. — Athenæum.

In its class I know no nobler or more beautiful sonnet than "Renouncement", and I have so considered ever since the day I first heard it, when Rossetti (who knew it by heart), repeating it to me, added that it was one of the three finest sonnets ever written by women. — Mr. WILLIAM SHARP.

The last verse of that perfectly heavenly "Letter from a Girl to her Own Old Age," the whole of "San Lorenzo's Mother," and the end of the sonnet, "To a Daisy," are the finest things I have yet seen or felt in modern verse. — Mr. RUSKIN.

The charm is of the intellect, of the spiritual emotions. Intensely feminine, and yet touched with an abstraction that is not feminine at all, intensely personal, and still holding an indefinable element of impartiality, these strange and beautiful melodies appeal to the imagination with a voice as of unfamiliar things brought near, melancholy, with never the echo of a whine, sweet with an almost exultant nobility of sorrow. — Academy.

An exquisite play upon our finer chords, quite her own, not to be heard from another. — GEORGE MEREDITH, in The National Review.

The restraint of strength is here, and her emotion is so well controlled, her thought so definite, that the expression of the one is never exaggerated, of the other is never obscure. The slur of sentimentality is absent from her pages, dainty or forcible, sad or impassioned, the song she sings is never hysterical or sickly; and the judgment of the artist directs the eloquence of the poet. — Quarterly Review.

THE RHYTHM OF LIFE

AND OTHER ESSAYS. Fcap. 8vo.

CONTENTS:—THE RHYTHM OF LIFE: DECIVILISED: A REMEMBRANCE: THE SUN: THE FLOWER: UNSTABLE EQUILIBRIUM: THE UNIT OF THE WORLD: BY THE RAILWAY SIDE: POCKET VOCABULARIES: PATHOS: THE POINT OF HONOUR: COMPOSURE: O. W. HOLMES: J. R. LOWELL: DOMUS ANGUSTA: REJECTION: THE LESSON OF LANDSCAPE: MR. PATMORE'S ODES: INNOCENCE AND EXPERIENCE: PENULTIMATE CARICATURE.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

Full of profound, searching, sensitive appreciation of all kinds of subjects. Exercises in close thinking and exact expression, almost unique in the literature of the day. — Athenæum.

Both in delicacy of unbackneyed thought and charm of style these essays are the most stimulating that have appeared since Mr. Stevenson delighted us with his "Virginibus Puerisque." To appreciate them is a step forward in education. We are conscious as we read that henceforth we shall look on life with a finer perception and more discriminating eyes. — Guardian.

The writing is limpid in its depths. — Mr. GEORGE MERREDITH, in The National Review.

At least half of the volume is classical work, embodying as it does new thought in perfect language, and bearing in every sentence the hall-mark of genius, namely, the marriage of masculine force of insight with feminine grace and tact of expression. — Mr. COVENTRY PATMORE, in the Fortnightly Review.

THE COLOUR OF LIFE AND OTHER ESSAYS ON THINGS SEEN AND HEARD. Fcap. 8vo.

CONTENTS:—THE COLOUR OF LIFE: A POINT OF BIOGRAPHY: CLOUD: WINDS OF THE WORLD: THE HONOURS OF MORTALITY: AT MONASTERY GATES: RUSHES AND REEDS: ELIZABETH DUNE: DONKEY RACES. GRASS: A WOMAN IN GREY: SYMMETRY AND INCIDENT: THE ILLUSION OF HISTORIC TIME: EARS.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

You read them with a passion of delight in swift sweetness of rhythm and reason, their magic of gracious wisdom, their radiant and enduring monies. We might define her book to be an excommunication of grossness, of spiritual obesity, and intellectual opacity. To see what this writer has seen, to hear what she has heard, is a lovely lesson in the art and nature of life. — Daily Chronicle.

Mrs. Meynell's work is marked by a rare originality, distinctness, and delicacy. It is difficult to praise too warmly the liberal judgment and intelligence that find utterance the most artistic in these reticent pages. — Pall Mall Gazette.

Her prose at its best is the purest and most beautiful of all prose. In her lightest essay there is indicated some new principle or significance, for insight into which all understanding readers must feel that they are permanently the better. Mrs. Meynell moves at an altitude and with a freedom for the like of which, at all events in any female writer, we must go back to Madame de Guyon or St. Frances de Chantal. — Saturday Review.

THE CHILDREN. Fcap. 8vo.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

• Her manner presents to me the image of one accustomed to walk in holy places and keep the eye of a fresh mind on our tangled world. . . . Her knowledge and her maternal love of children are shown in her ready entry into the childish state and transcript of its germinal ideas . . . only deep love could furnish the intimate knowledge to expound them so. — Mr. GEORGE MEREDITH, in The National Review.

To a pretty theme she has applied her prettiest of manners . . . She comes certificated by authoritative hand, as trained by maternal sympathy in the unlocking of children's secrets. — Prof. J. SEELEY.

The note of the book is humour, — humour unstretched and inviolate, clear, simple, shining, and never at fault. . . . Mrs. Meynell makes that most difficult of achievements, habitual toleration of children, seem not only intelligible, but within easy reach of the thoughtful. Her book is a fairyland where there is, indeed, a place of rest. — Pall Mall Gazette.

THE SPIRIT OF PLACE AND OTHER ESSAYS. Fcap. 8vo.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

It is a matter of fair complaint against Mrs. Meynell that she publishes so little, or, if it be true, as one reads in the chattering paragraphs, that she writes more than she signs, then that she collects so little of it; for one cannot believe that a writer whose perceptions are so fine but so human, whose reflections are so fine but so just, can write anything one would not wish to read. — Pall Mall Gazette.

The subjects are new and various, but the matter has the same force as in the earlier books, the same delicate lucidity, the same thrice-distilled concentration of meaning and of language. Densely packed as they are with thought, they appeal especially to cultured minds, and yet they are written with such a pure simplicity of style, with so much grace and precision and distinctness, that any sympathetic human soul should find them clear as noonday. — Daily Mail.

It may be said that there is not, perhaps, a sentence in it not purely the direct expression of either an original thought or of an emotion felt at first hand and with conviction. — The Dems.

Dainty, distinguished, and most convincing. — Bookman.

One must follow with clear and keen attention, else much is lost; but the atmosphere and the cadence and decision of her style linger long in the mind. To have caught her music in a day like ours is almost a fine art in itself. — Sunday Special.

Mrs. Meynell's work has imagination and distinction, strength, and lightness. Here is indeed, to use her phrase, a "nimble" mind; she vivifies and enlightens common things. She can be fantastical with an assured gravity and profound with no sense of oppression. — Manchester Guardian.

